

Abstract

A system and method for the publication of performance data over a network for access by a plurality of performance tools. In response to HTTP calls, the performance data is provided to performance tools over a network in XML data structures.

[illegible]